2. Questions About the Reasons for Seeking Asylum

The heart of any asylum application revolves around demonstrating persecution or well-founded fear of persecution. Officers will probe deeply into your specific experiences, requiring detailed accounts of incidents that forced you to flee your home country.

Core Persecution-Based Questions

- What specific harm did you experience or fear? Officers expect concrete examples rather than general statements about country conditions
- Who persecuted or threatened you? Identify specific individuals, groups, or government entities involved
- When did these incidents occur? Provide exact dates, timeframes, and frequency of persecution
- Where did the persecution take place? Include specific locations, addresses, and geographic details

Protected Ground Categories

Your asylum claims questions must establish persecution based on one of five protected grounds:

- Race or ethnicity - discrimination based on physical characteristics or ethnic identity
- Religion - persecution for religious beliefs, practices, or conversion
- Nationality - harm due to citizenship, statelessness, or ethnic nationalism
- Political opinion - persecution for actual or imputed political beliefs
- Particular social group - membership in a group sharing immutable characteristics

3. Questions Addressing Bars to Asylum Eligibility

During the asylum interview, USCIS officers must assess whether applicants face any asylum bars questions that could disqualify them from protection under US immigration law. These inquiries follow strict guidelines outlined in 8 CFR 208.6 and Secretary of Homeland Security regulations to ensure thorough vetting of each case.

Criminal History and Persecution Involvement

Officers will ask detailed questions about your criminal background, including:

- Any arrests, charges, or convictions in your home country or elsewhere
- Participation in persecution of others based on protected characteristics
- Involvement in serious non-political crimes committed before arriving in the United States
- Commission of particularly serious crimes that may render you ineligible for asylum

National Security and Immigration Violations

4. Legal Representation at the Asylum Interview: The Role of an Attorney or Representative

Right to Legal Counsel During Asylum Proceedings

Asylum seekers have the right to bring an attorney at asylum interview proceedings without any cost to the U.S. government. Legal representatives must submit Form G-28 (Notice of Entry of Appearance as Attorney or Accredited Representative) to USCIS before the scheduled interview to establish their official role in the case.

Verification Questions About Legal Representation

USCIS officers usually ask specific questions to confirm the presence and authority of legal counsel:

- “Do you have an attorney or representative present today?”
- “Has your attorney filed Form G-28 with our office?”
- “Do you understand your right to legal representation during this interview?”

How Attorneys Assist During the Interview Process

Legal representation for asylum seekers provides crucial support throughout the interview:

1. Clarifying complex legal terminology and procedural requirements
2. Objecting to inappropriate questions that fall outside the scope of asylum law
3. Requesting breaks when clients become overwhelmed or need consultation
4. Ensuring accurate interpretation of responses and legal concepts

Finding Pro Bono Legal Assistance

Several resources help locate affordable legal representation:

- Office of Legal Access Programs (OLAP) maintains directories of qualified attorneys
- Department of Justice (DOJ) website lists recognized organizations providing legal aid
- Local bar associations often maintain pro bono referral programs

In recent discussions about improving the asylum process, several recommendations have been put forth that emphasize the importance of legal representation during these proceedings.

5. Interpreter Requirements During the Asylum Interview: Ensuring Effective Communication

Basic Interpreter Qualifications

Interpreter requirements asylum interview mandate specific qualifications for language assistance during asylum proceedings. Interpreters must demonstrate fluency in both English and the applicant's native language, with age restrictions requiring interpreters to be at least 18 years old. The regulation 8 CFR 208.9\(g\) provides exceptions for deaf or hard-of-hearing applicants who may use younger interpreters when necessary.

Prohibited Interpreter Categories

Several categories of individuals cannot serve as interpreters:

- The applicant's attorney or legal representative
- Witnesses testifying on the applicant's behalf
- Representatives or employees of the applicant's home country government

Verification and Monitoring Process

Asylum officers routinely ask questions to verify the interpreter's accuracy and impartiality during the interview process. Contract interpreter monitoring occurs through telephone supervision, where USCIS contract interpreters observe sessions to ensure adequate, accurate, and neutral interpretation without directly participating in translation services.

Consequences of Inadequate Interpretation

When no competent interpreter is available, USCIS will cancel and reschedule the asylum interview. This delay can impact non-English speaker assistance and potentially affect employment authorization eligibility, as applicant-caused delays may influence Form I-765 processing timelines.

6. Consequences of Missing Your Asylum Interview: What Happens Next?

Missing your scheduled asylum interview triggers immediate administrative consequences that can significantly impact your case. USCIS issues a "Failure to Appear Warning Letter" after your absence, initiating a formal process that requires swift action on your part.

Timeline Requirements for Response

The warning letter establishes critical deadlines for requesting a rescheduled interview:

- Within 45 days: Must demonstrate good cause for missing the appointment
- Beyond 45 days: Must prove exceptional circumstances justified the absence
- No response: Results in automatic case referral or administrative closure

Questions About Your Absence

During the rescheduling process, asylum officers will ask specific asylum interview questions regarding your failure to appear:

- What prevented you from attending the scheduled interview?
- Do you have documentation supporting your reason for absence?
- When did you become aware of the missed appointment?
- What steps did you take to contact the asylum office?
